Company overview

The Lyndon Cook Food Company is a UK food supply business working with food manufacturers, wholesalers, caterers, retailers and food service operators. The catalogue is organised into four categories, and every enquiry is handled as a commercial conversation rather than a transaction.

The business does not publish prices, stock levels or fixed lead times online. Product specification, pack format, volume, delivery schedule and price are agreed in writing for each supply programme, which is why an enquiry usually needs a little more detail than a shopping basket would.

Working with us

- Enquiries are answered by the people who handle supply, not a call centre.
- Specifications are confirmed in writing before any programme is agreed.
- Quantities are discussed in the unit that suits the customer; units are never converted on their behalf.
- Volumes are planned, with typical full-load supply across the range.
- NORM canned foods use a 400 ml can format, which is a pack format rather than a stated net weight.

How we supply

01 Enquiry

Send the product, specification, quantity, destination and delivery schedule through the enquiry form, or by email or telephone. An account is not required.

02 Requirements

The enquiry is reviewed against the catalogue. Where a requirement sits outside the standard range, that is said plainly before anything is quoted.

03 Quotation

Price, delivery schedule, pack format and terms are set out in writing. Nothing on this profile constitutes an offer.

04 Supply programme

Volumes, delivery cadence and any site requirements are agreed. Requirements are reviewed as they change, and confirmed revisions are issued in writing.
